

Superstore Sales Performance Dashboard Report

Executive Summary

This dashboard presents a comprehensive overview of superstore's sales performance across various dimensions including product categories, regions, sales trends over time, and profitability. The analysis reveals strong overall performance with notable opportunities in specific sub-categories and discount strategies.

Key Highlights

- Total Sales: $2.30 Million
- Total Profit: $286,400
- Profit Margin: 12.45%

Detailed Analysis:

Profit by Sub-Category

The Bar chart on the left shows that Copiers generate the highest profit ($55,617.82), followed by Phones ($44,515.73) and Accessories ($41,936.64). Tables and Bookcases are among the lowest sub-categories.

Insight: The company should invest more resources on high profit items like copiers and phones while evaluating pricing cost structures for low performing furniture items (Tables and Bookcases).

Monthly Sales and Profit Trend

The area chart shows monthly sales and profit trends. Sales shows a strong upward trend throughout the year. Peak performance occurred in November and December ($352,416.07 & $365,293.50 respectively). Profit generally follows the sales trend but remains relatively stable.

Insight: Seasonal demand is a major driver of revenue. The company should make better inventory planning during November & December which can help maximize yearly performance.

Sales Distribution by Region

The donut chart reveals West Region the highest sales contribution (31.58%), East Region the second highest (29.55%), Central and South follow with lower shares.

Insight: The West and East regions are the strongest markets. The Company should find out why the Central and South regions are underperforming.

Sales by Discount and Profit

The scatter plot reveals a negative relationship between high discount levels and profit margins.

Insight: Excessive discounting may be wearing down profitability. A more strategic discount policy is recommended.

Sales by State and Category

The map and supporting visuals highlight sales concentration across the United States, with clear variation by state and product category.

Recommendations

1. Increase focus on high-profit sub-categories (Copiers& Phones) while improving low-profit sub-categories (Tables& Bookcases).
2. Strengthen presence and marketing efforts in underperforming regions (Central& South).
3. Review and reduce the pattern of higher discount levels, as they appear to negatively impact profit margins.
4. The company should make better inventory planning during November& December which can help maximize yearly performance.

Conclusion

The Superstore continues to generate solid revenue, particularly in Copiers, Phones and the West/East regions. However, improving profitability through better product focus and smarter discounting will be key to sustainable growth.
